

I person think that limiting the number of media outlets (tv stations, news papers, radio) one person can own is an important thing and should be left the way it is. If companies are given the opportunity to own as many of these outlets as they want/can, we will end up with only one company in control of all we see hear or read. Which in the end will narrow our view on almost everything that takes place in this world and what they want us to know/see is the only thing we will.
